

© kichigin19 — stock.adobe.com

“Beast From The East” Snowstorm Emma Heads to UK and Europe

---

Snow Storm Emma, dubbed the “worst snow storm in 50 years” by news sources, will hit the UK in less than 24 hours before moving onto Spain, Portugal, and France.

Ireland’s Dublin Airport has temporarily suspended operations due to the weather, and flight disruptions including over a hundred cancellations from Ryanair and British Airways have been reported. London-Gatwick and London-Heathrow airports are also facing disruptions to service, and London City Airport has also put its flights on hold as the UK’s national weather service Met Office issues a red weather warning, signifying extensive risk to life and substantial damage to property. Emma’s onset is expected to bring difficulties to rail service and air travel in the coming days.

Adverse conditions from the snow have already caused KWE offices in Glasgow, Plymouth, and Newcastle to close for the day.

For pressing inquiries and updates, please reach your local KWE branch for information.